Seng Chan You (Yonsei University, Republic of Korea)

Dr. Seng Chan You attained his Ph.D. from Ajou University's Department of Biomedical Informatics. He immersed himself in the Observational Health Data Sciences and Informatics (OHDSI) community, earning recognition through the "Best Community Contribution Award for Clinical Evidence Generation" at the 2017 OHDSI symposium.

Post-Ph.D., Dr. You launched his career at Yonsei University College of Medicine, acquiring M.D. and M.S. degrees in Internal Medicine. Transitioning through the Department of Preventive Medicine and Public Health, he's now an assistant professor in Biomedical System Informatics. His exceptional research was acknowledged with the 2021 Young Scientist Award from the Wunsch Medical Award. Notably, this award stems from his international study comparing ticagrelor and clopidogrel across the OHDSI network.

In March 2024, Dr. You was appointed as an Associate Editor to the editorial board of the renowned medical journal JACC.

Dr. You's interests span medical big data, A.I., and digital therapeutics. His commitment to both OHDSI and developing the Common Data Model (CDM) in the Korean medical society remains unwavering.
